Best Art Galleries in San Francisco

May 20, 2014 | by Angella Sprauve

San Francisco is one of the world's most artistic cities, where creativity screams from every corner, art galleries line every neighborhood and curators work feverishly to bring the work of world-renowned artists to San Francisco. Haute Living presents the top 5 art galleries in the city.

1 Serge Sorokko Gallery

One of our favorite art galleries in San Francisco, the Sorokko Gallery always has something intriguing to offer. Located in the heart of Union Square in downtown San Francisco, the gallery features a range of original work - from painting and sculpture to works on paper and photography. Under the helm of founder and owner Serge Sorokko, the gallery has fostered many emerging painters, while also exposing collectors to established artists such as Damien Hirst, Sol LeWitt, Isabelle de Borchgrave, Antoni Tapies, and Sean Scully. Every exhibit is a must-experience.

2 San Francisco Art Institute

The San Francisco Art Institute is a unique gem of San Francisco that functions as both an art gallery and a school. Definitely one of the more relaxed gallery spaces, the public has inside access to wander the halls and peek through windows. Perfect viewpoints allow for an uninterrupted view of the city in clouds or sun.

3 SF MOMA

Just because the MoMA is temporarily closed for remodeling doesn't mean that they're out of commission. Our favorite modern art museum is still going strong with rotating exhibits around the city as well as an art store in Yerba Buena Lane.

4 DeYoung Museum

The architecture and the design of the DeYoung building alone is amazing. This museum has a bit of everything for everyone. It is divided into various sections with different themes, such as a featured artist, photography, oil paintings, geographic/regional, ethnic, ancient as well as the most contemporary. Over the past few years, memorable exhibits were Balenciaga, Gaultier and Bulgari.

5 Legion of Honor

The Legion of Honor is one of San Francisco's most prestigious museums with an incredible offering, including its location overlooking the Pacific Ocean and Bay. A few favorites over the past years include Marie Antoinette, Japanese Woodblock Prints and Lalique. The permanent collection includes, Monet, Picasso, Salvadore Dali, Faberge, French period rooms and much more.
