SAN FRANCISCO (April 23, 2014) - Serge Sorokko Gallery is pleased to announce the opening of the Donald Sultan exhibit: “Donald Sultan: A Decade of Paintings and Drawings”, from May 22 through July 1, 2014. This remarkable collection of over 20 original works will include an unveiling of new paintings and classics from the past decade. The exhibit marks the first time Sultan has shown in San Francisco in over 20 years. Serge and Tatiana Sorokko will host a private reception in his honor at the Serge Sorokko Gallery on May 22, from 6:00 – 8:00 pm.

“After years of anticipation, we are thrilled to bring Donald’s extraordinary mixed media paintings and drawings to the gallery and San Francisco,” said Serge Sorokko. “In the two decades since his last San Francisco exhibition, the appreciation for Donald’s inimitable imagery, as well as his use of innovative materials, has continued to grow among collectors and critics alike.”

Sultan, an internationally recognized artist who rose to prominence in the late 1970s as part of the “New Image” movement, is known for elevating the still-life tradition through the deconstruction of his subjects into basic forms and the use of industrial materials. His paintings characteristically employ enamel, roofing tar, aluminum, linoleum, and spackle, pushing the boundaries of the medium through techniques of gouging, sanding, and buffing to create flatness, depth, and texture. The works are made of the same materials as the building in which the viewer stands; the architecture participates in the paintings. Weighty and structured, Sultan’s paintings are simultaneously abstract and representational: while his imagery is immediately recognizable – flowers, daily objects, insignia, idle factories – the dominating, abstract forms contradict its common association with fragility.

“Donald Sultan: A Decade of Paintings and Drawings” will highlight the artist’s continued reinvention of the still-life genre through the exploration of color, scale, form and repetition that is characteristic of his style. The exhibition will feature large and medium scale paintings which combine a minimalist aesthetic with his highly unique treatment and destruction of surface, in addition to a group of more intimate paintings and drawings, many of which were created specifically for this exhibition.
