Rocking Out at the St. Francis

The Shultzes go '50s at Hills dinner-dance

Ingrid and Reuben Hills' rock 'n' roll party Tuesday for George and Charlotte Shultz was a hit. Guests had been asked to dress rock 'n' roll for the dinner-dance at the St. Francis. Everyone had their own spin on what that was, from George's Buddy Holly to Gavin Newsom's dark suit.

Fritz Jewett and son George III wore identical Bono-type wigs and platform shoes; Stephene McKeen was a very hairy Cher; Candy Hamm was a preppy college student; and John Traina was a rock star with two dates, Ann Moller Caen and Frances Bowes (husband John was out of town). Marion Cope wore a chic black dress, saying her single-strand pearl necklace was very '50s. An eclectic evening: The menu consisted of Ingrid's favorite German fare, including the best wursts, and Bill Hopkins' band played Latin music for dancing. Viva, Ingrid and Reuben.

Before heading for the Hillises', Sally Debenham, with a beehive wig, and her husband, Warren, in Elvis hair, were among those at Cartier for a champagne and caviar fix. There were a few whispers of "Who are they?" from the crowd, but a bigger stir was caused by newsman Phil Bronstein arriving with actress Sharon Stone, who looked gorgeous. Cartier's Wes Carroll sighed, "I didn't get to say hello to her, but I got to say goodbye." At least you'll always have "Basic Instinct" together.

Phil and Sharon went on to the Serge Sorokko Gallery on Grant for the opening of a show by rock 'n' roll (talk about coincidence) photographer Jim Marshall. Jim signed copies of his book "Not Fade Away." He'll be back tomorrow to sign some more.

Jewel, the singing sensation, will do the national anthem at the Super Bowl in San Diego. Meanwhile, she's in the neighborhood; went shopping yesterday at Emporio Armani for super gear and did a big corporate party last night . . . SFMOMA's Giorgio Armani fashion show/black-tie dinner will be March 25, two days after the Academy Awards, which means Giorgio, who goes to L.A. for the Oscars, might fly in for it . . . The rumor is that the one who snatched on the late Ambassador Larry Lawrence (resulting in the removal of his body from Arlington) was an ex-wife; had four.

Follow that lamb chop: lots of terrific cocktail buffets lately, such as the one Nion and Ira McEvoy gave at their home, garlanded perfectly for the occasion . . . At Bernie Hagan's, caterer Dan McCall kept guests supplied with lamb chops. Same night, a couple of blocks away, Michael Barcun and Ron Schwarz had a lavish buffet . . . The Regent Beverly Wilshire's Deborah Lung flew in to check out suites because the Wilshire is adding about 30. She thinks they have the biggest on the West Coast: 4,000 square feet. Sorry, the Fairmont's penthouse is 4,200. On a research break, she had a delicious six-course lunch with Shirley Fong-Torres at Tommy Toy's. "Do people up here eat like this every day?" she asked. Whenever we can.
